Blessed Kateri Tekakwitha

Lily of the Mohawks

Tekakwitha was the daughter of a Christian Algonquin mother and a non-Christian Mohawk Chief. She was born in 1656 on the south bank of the Mohawk River in a village called Ossernenon. When she was four years old, a smallpox epidemic claimed the lives of her parents and baby brother. Tekakwitha survived the disease, but her eyesight was scarred and the disease left her weak the rest of her life. In 1670, St. Peter's Mission was established in Caughnawaga (Fonda, NY). In 1674, Father James de Lamberville took charge of the mission. Tekakwitha met Father de Lamberville a year later and told him of her desire to become baptized. In 1676, April 5, she was baptized and given the name Kateri. In August, 1677, Kateri fled her village to go and live at Sault St. Louis, St. Francis Xavier Mission near Montreal. Two months later she arrived at the Sault with the help of friends. On Christmas Day, 1677, Kateri received her first Holy Communion. On March 25, 1679, Kateri pronounced her vow of perpetual virginity. Her whole life was devoted to teaching prayers to children and helping the sick and aged until she was struck with an illness that was to claim her life. On April 17, 1680, she died at the age of 24. Her last words were: "Iesos konoronkwa." "Jesus, I love you." Fifteen minutes after her death, before the eyes of two Jesuits and Indian friends, the ugly scars on her face suddenly disappeared. On January 3, 1943, she was declared Venerable by Pope Pius XII. She was beatified by Pope John Paul II on June 22, 1980.

VISION

The purpose of the Tekakwitha Conference is the evangelization of Native American Catholics.

GOALS

- To unify Native American Catholics while respecting tribal differences.
- To empower Native American Catholics to live in harmony with their Catholic and native spirituality.
- To promote and maintain on-going communication and involvement between tribes, the Tekakwitha Conference, and the hierarchy of the Catholic Church in America.
- To pray for the canonization of Blessed Kateri Tekakwitha, to share the story of her life, and to follow her example of holiness.
- To encourage the development of local Kateri Circles.
- To cooperate with local, regional, and national groups to realize this vision.
